Job Description

Job Title	BRIT Kids Theatre Teacher
Department	BRIT Kids
Hours of Work	Various
Contract Type	Yearly
Responsible to	Director of BRIT Kids

Job Overview

At BRIT Kids we ask teachers to be creative, contemporary and self-directed. We want teaching at BRIT Kids to be the highlight of their week. We believe that allowing teachers to devise and create their own class content, means that they have ownership over what they are delivering and therefore passion and knowledge to deliver at a high level. Teachers are asked to devise their own projects and write their own schemes of work, with support and guidance, when needed by the Director. The emphasis on contemporary, unique and challenging is important to us. Teachers are encouraged to take risks and step out of their comfort zone. The joy of teaching at BRIT Kids is that although we have high expectations, level descriptors and ask for schemes of work overviews, teachers are not confined by a curriculum. Please see our website for a detailed overview of our theater course for 7- 18 year olds.

Key Responsibilities

These to include:

- To write Schemes of work
- To deliver theatre classes
- To attend meetings with director

About Us

School Overview BRIT Kids was launched at The BRIT School in 2002 as the school wanted to reach out to the local community, allowing everyone to have access to the school's facilities on a Saturday, when it would otherwise be empty. Initially it started with Performing Arts classes, but over time it was identified that there was a need and want for children to come and attend Creative Arts classes too.

BRIT Kids at The BRIT School now offers 14 different disciplines and has over 700 students attend in Croydon every Saturday. We launched our Kings Cross site in Jan 2024 at Westminster Kingsway college. Initially starting with 8 different disciplines across performing and creative arts and we are already expanding our timetable.

Our Mission We are interested in this melting pot of creativity, allowing children to move between the Performing and Creative Classes, meaning there really is something for everyone. We have a strong ethos for how this creativity is delivered and wish for this to be reflected in each BRIT Kids Saturday School;

We welcome all children, from all walks of life and creative abilities. BRIT Kids is not to judge on creative ability but to encourage commitment, good attendance and praise fully focused participation. This is a Saturday school and should have a delicate balance between learning and fun. Teachers should be on first name terms and should strive to educate in a warm, inviting atmosphere, however with a firm objective to impart the joys of their specialism to a high level;

We have a structure underpinning it that comes direct from The BRIT School, meaning that we reflect the high levels of teaching and learning at our Saturday Schools. Simply because the classes happen on a Saturday should not mean that they are any less considered and planned for;

We ask teachers to be creative, contemporary and self-directed. We want teaching at BRIT Kids to be the highlight of their week. We believe that allowing teachers to devise and create their own class content, means that they have ownership over what they are delivering and therefore passion and knowledge to deliver at a high level. Teachers are asked to devise their own projects and write their own schemes of work, with support and guidance, when needed by the Director. The emphasis on contemporary, unique and challenging is important to us. Teachers are encouraged to take risks and step out of their comfort zone.

The joy of teaching is that, although we have high expectations, level descriptors and ask for schemes of work, teachers are not confined by a curriculum.

BRIT Kids Ethos

BRIT Kids ethos is ultimately to create a community feel on a Saturday that ignites children's creativity and allows them to experience high quality teaching, build confidence and peer relations. BRIT Kids can play an important part in a child's life, for some children we will be the highlight of their week. Every class is a building block to enhance a child's confidence, skills and positive relationships rather than focusing on the final outcome.
